THE HIGH principle which it is stated in some quarters will prevent democrats from voting for Mr. Massey for Congressman at the expense he incurred. large and that would render defeat under any other democrat more preferable to victory under him, is so straight that it is swaybacked and leans over to Mahoneism. The chief object of the Virginia democrats now is to rescue their State from the clutches of the proposed railroad to connect the United the reckless and rapacious crew to whose hands it was consigned by the votes of ignorant, careless and irresponsible negroes. Before that the importance of all other things pales into comparative insignificance. High-toned principle is all right when the conditions are suitable to its applicability, gan, S. M. Bailey and A. THE WAY in which postoffice affairs in Virginia are conducted at the Postoflice Department in Washington is scandalously grotesque, in view of the fact that General Mahone holds no official position in that department. About a month ago a member of the House of Representatives from Virginia | tofore been a republican and a strong antimade application therefor the establishment Mahone man, uninterested people think of a short mail route in his district every the Doctor's hopes are the farther of his of a short mail route in his district, every expense of which was to be borne by the people to be supplied with the service. It means that in a State in which every man enjoys the privilege of suffrage, if not the right to compete for a commission in the army, twenty thousand scalawags and a hun- and representative of that county for two dred thousand negroes, at the polls, will sessions in the lower branch of the Legislaalways defeat one hundred thousand men really interested in the 'welfare and happiness of that State.

It will take the ground that the Administration by a remarkable perversion is opposed to republicanism in Virginia, but that the republicans of the State, not withstanding this cruel and unreasonable course, will be true to themselves and show the country that they are not the men Mr. John to be and that they are actuated by the same motives that influence the reputable portion of the republican party in the North. THE HIGH PRICE OF BEEF which has preto the North, where he is interested in a vailed since early in April will likely continue until July, when it is expected grass fed cattle will come to market in such large numbers as to force a break in prices. Owing, however, to the fact of grass-fed cattle yielding less than corn-fed, a considerable fall must take place in the price of stock on the hoof before it will be perceptible to the consumer. February 1 the best cuts of roast beef cost 16 to 18 cts., steaks 16 to 25, soup meat 8 to 10; present prices for best roast cuts are 20 to 23 cents, steaks 20 to 30, soup meat 10 to 12. The cause of the high price now prevailing is to be found in the scarcity of the supply of stock. The shortage of the crops last year and the consequent high price of corn made it more profitable for farmers who had a surplus to send it to market instead of feeding it to cattle. Farmers in Western Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia who were accustomed to feed several hundred beef cattle did not send more than one-fourth of that number to market, and some fed none at all. Those who had beef cattle ran them off early in the season and sold their corn. Consequently their was no reserve near by to draw upon, and the stringency in the supply was felt in February. The market soon became dependent upon Western supplies principally cattle fed distilleries in Iillnois, Kentucky and Ohio, and Western speculators took advantage of the situation. Fifty carloads per week is sufficient to supply Baltimore, and surplus arriving was shipped to the East and exported. The price was advanced from 5 and 6 cents in January (the latter figure for exceptionally fine stock) to 9 cents June 1. Since then there has been a slight decline. One Chicago speculator is known to control 250,000 head of beef cattle, which he moves at will to influence the market. A Baltimore dealer is said to have realized $15 per head on a lot recently handled. Fortunately for the consumer, the prospects are the supply of grass-fed stock will be unusually large in numbers and fine in quality. It is doubtful if speculative influences can hold the prices up long against this influx when it comes. Until then they are to be regarded as masters of the situation. The fine promise of the grain crop this year will also operate to break prices. The scarcity of corn is also the cause of the high prices for pork, and the same influences which apply to beef will cause a fall in that. The backwardness of the spring season has resulted in high rates for vegetables and other table supplies, but it is hoped that as the season advances cheapness and abundance will return .- Baltimore Sun.

Several other buildings in the neighborhood were set on fire by sparks from the burning warehouse, but were saved with slight loss. The origin of the fire is a mystery.
